Background

- » The California Department of Health Care Services (DHCS) is releasing this Request for Applications (RFA) to fund two Traditional Indian Health (TIH) education programs that will assist Indian clinics in providing services to American Indians in a culturally appropriate manner. A total of $200,000 is available to fund regional TIH programs for two fiscal years.
- » Awards are subject to the availability of funding.

Activities to be Funded

- » To qualify for funding the Indian health program shall be administered by either a non-profit corporation organized under the laws of the State of California or by an Indian Tribe.
- » The board of directors or trustees of such corporation shall be composed of a majority of Indians.

Project Scope

» The provision of traditional Indian health includes traditional practices of Indian medicine which are native to and accepted by an Indian community as handed down through the generations and can be established through the collective knowledge of the elders of that Indian community. TIH services may include, but are not limited to the following:

1. Travel and related costs for medicine men and women.
2. Cultural sensitization education for health program personnel.

Project Scope Continued

» The goals of the two TIH education programs are to:

- Increase the capacity of Indian clinics to provide services in a culturally appropriate manner
- Provide a forum for the Indian community to address TIH education

Funding

- » It is anticipated $200,000 will be made available to support each regional program (one in the southern part of California and one statewide urban) as follows:
 - Fiscal Year 2023-2024 - $100,000
 - Fiscal Year 2024-2025 - $100,000
- » The maximum funding is $50,000 per region per fiscal year.
- » The funding period is anticipated to be August 2023 – June 2025.
